

CONSTRUCTIVE APPROACH

Finished view showing new loft area, dining room and adjoining conservatory

"The level of finish achieved, and attention to detail by Constructive Approach exceeded our expectations."

Having specialised as a recommended contractor for many of the country's leading insurance companies and loss adjusters, more recently Constructive Approach has moved into the building alterations, extensions and conversion market for homeowners in Herts, Essex and Cambridgeshire. This extension for Mr and Mrs Palmer of Chorleywood, Hertfordshire took a total of 18 weeks commencing in February 2003. The architect was David Jones of Alun Design, Wendons Ambo and the Team Leader was Mark Bradford.

When Bill and Tracy Palmer decided to have an extension built, they wanted a building firm that would take care of everything for them.

"We have four children and both work full-time, therefore we lead very busy lives. It was a big help to us that Mark Kinnard and Constructive Approach co-ordinated every aspect of the work – it took a lot of stress away from both of us."

This was not a straightforward extension. On the ground floor the existing garage was to be demolished and converted into a dining room.

The existing hip end of the roof was stripped and removed to allow for the loft space to be converted into a stunning master bedroom with ensuite bathroom.

A key feature of the bedroom was a pair of south-facing walk-in dormer windows which were joined up by a custom-made wrought-iron pied-a-terre.

“It could have been eight or nine months of hell if we had taken on the wrong company. We had a kitchen fitted some time ago and it was a nightmare. We were so happy because this time it wasn’t like that.”

“Mark Kinnard was very professional. He always turned up on time and made us feel very comfortable as he went through with us all the work that would be taking place down to the last detail”
